Cincinnati TOPSoccer – A Soccer League for Individuals with Special Needs

Imagine a place where the playing field is leveled, where everyone gets a chance to score their first goal in life. Think about a game where everyone is on your side, where the cheers are the loudest and the smiles are brighter than ever.

Welcome to Cincinnati TOPSoccer, part of a national soccer program created to train young people with disabilities in a caring coaching environment. Any person age 4 and older with a physical or cognitive disability, no matter how severe, can play TOPSoccer. Individuals may participate regardless of their understanding of the game and with or without the need for physical assistance or apparatus (walkers, crutches, wheelchairs, etc). Games and practice sessions are modified as needed to meet the needs of each player. Buddies are provided for individuals who need one on one assistance / guidance.

This program provides young people with special needs a place where they can be a part of a real sports team complete with practices, games, uniforms, tournament, end of season banquets and trophies.

Team placement is by ability, size and age to ensure the safety and success of each child at whatever level they are able to participate.

At Cincinnati TOPSoccer, we measure (and celebrate) each success in whatever form each child is able to achieve.

Get off the sidelines and into the game!

We can never underestimate the value of a playground outing. Without even knowing it, a child is learning a huge amount about coordination and muscle strength when playing and exploring the play equipment in a playground. Building upper body and arm strength is vital for developing good fine motor skills.

In Portland we have beautiful scenery and family areas. Unfortunately none of these areas have play equipment for those in wheelchair or with special needs. The council are upgrading our foreshore already but there are no plans for anything wheelchair inclusive. How hard would it be for a wheelchair swing? Or even ramps? What about a maze wide enough for a wheelchair for everyone to enjoy? It's not fair on these children to watch their siblings play whilst they sit on the sidelines. We should focus on including everyone. Not only is this positive for our community but also would attract more tourists where special needs inclusion is a must. Staying fit with wheelchair sports

Wheelchair sports have seen a surge in popularity over the past few years. From Olympic competitions to locally organized events, more athletes with disabilities have discovered the excitement and thrill of competition that can be found in adaptive sports. Although designs have been made to make even the most challenging activities available to those with limited mobility, such as adaptive surfboards, skis and more, there are also a number of sports that do not require the use of any special equipment and can be enjoyed by people of all skill levels and abilities.

Archery

Unleash your inner Katniss Everdeen and experience the exhilaration of a bulls-eye shot. While archery may not be the first activity you think of when sports are brought up, it's actually a great form of exercise, building arm strength, hand-eye coordination and focus.

Table Tennis

Table tennis allows wheelchair users and able-bodied people to compete head-to-head against each other, making this a truly inclusive sport. Its ability to accommodate multiple levels of players has made table tennis one of the most popular sports for wheelchair users. It is even an integral part of many rehabilitation programs!

Bowling

Unlike many other sports, bowling offers the opportunity to enjoy food, drinks and good times with friends while actively competing against each other. This unique characteristic makes this a popular sport to enjoy while on a nighttime outing and is something the whole family can enjoy.

What is Disc Golf?

For the official PDGA rule book,

The Drive

The Approach

The Putt

The ???!?!?!

What is Disc Golf?

Disc golf is played much like traditional golf. Instead of a ball and clubs, however, players use a flying disc, or Frisbee®. The sport was formalized in the 1970's, and shares with "ball golf" the object of completing each hole in the fewest number of strokes (or, in the case of disc golf, fewest number of throws).

A golf disc is thrown from a tee area to a target which is the "hole". the hole can be one of a number of disc golf targets; the most common is called a Pole Hole® an elevated metal basket. As a player progresses down the fairway, he or she must make each consecutive shot from the spot where the previous throw has landed.

The trees, shrubs, and terrain changes located in and around the fairways provide challenging obstacles for the golfer. Finally, the "putt" lands in the basket and the hole is completed. Disc golf shares the same joys and frustrations of traditional golf, whether it's sinking a long putt or hitting a tree halfway down the fairway.

There are few differences, though. Disc golf rarely requires a greens fee, you probably won't need to rent a cart, and you never get stuck with a bad "tee time." It is designed to be enjoyed by people of all ages, male and female, regardless of economic status.

We've seen some crazy golf bags in our days, but this is a serious one.

Who Plays Disc Golf?

Disc golf can be played from school age to old age, making it the one of the greatest lifetime fitness sports available. Specially-abled and disabled participate, giving them the opportunity to take part in a mainstream activity. Because disc golf is so easy to learn, no one is excluded. Players merely match their pace to their capabilities, and proceed from there. New Zealand's Disc Golf events cater for men and women of every skill level from novice to professional. Permanent disc golf courses are found in countries worldwide, as well as throughout New Zealand.

Where do I play?

The struggle to get permanent courses in New Zealand's main cities and towns is forever ongoing, but some town and city parks have golf courses already set up. All are free to play as often as you like. Disc golfers who do not have the benefit of a permanent disc golf facility in their area often "make up" object courses in nearby parks and green spaces. Keep an eye on our Courses in New Zealand section which is constantly being updated (and having new courses added we are very pleased to note!)

One of the great features disc golf shares with traditional golf is that they are both played in beautiful settings. A nine-hole disc golf course can be established on as little as two hectares of land, and a championship-caliber 18-hole course on 12 to 16 hectares. Disc golf courses can coexist with existing park facilities and activity areas. The ideal location combines wooded and open terrains, and a variety of topographical change.

The need for more courses is constant, as the sport continues to grow in popularity. The PDGA has created standards for the design and installation of new golf courses, to ensure their success in the community. And Gentil Sport, who run this website have ready-made proposals for you to put forward to councils and land owners so just drop us a line if you need help.

Why should I play?

The ongoing fitness boom finds more and more people taking up recreational activities in an effort to improve health and quality of life. Disc golf provides upper and lower body conditioning, aerobic exercise, and promotes a combination of physical and mental abilities that allow very little risk of physical injury. Concentration skills increase by mastering shots and negotiating obstacles. Players of limited fitness levels can start slowly and gradually increase their level of play as fitness improves. Scheduling is also flexible; a round takes one to two hours, and may be played alone, eliminating the difficulty of scheduling tee times. And as in traditional golf, disc golfers find themselves "hooked;" increasing the likelihood of frequent participation. Disc golf offers year-round fitness, even in rain or snow. Perhaps the greatest attribute of the sport is the expense - or rather, the lack of it. A professional quality disc costs less than $30, and it only takes one for basic play.

And, of course, there's the sheer fun of the game - no matter what your age or skill level!
